A DAILY RESEARCH DESK FOR CHAIRMAN / CEO

Thirty days of change.
One clear page before the meeting.

Important context is scattered across news, company announcements, hiring updates and market reports. Briefing Agent brings the latest 30 days of selected public information into one concise, source-linked brief—so a leader can prepare with less searching and verify every claim.

From a company or person to a meeting-ready briefing — 30 DAYS · SOURCED · USER-STARTED

HOW A BUSY DAY USES IT

1 · Set the context
Choose Company or Person, add the meeting time, and select the subjects that matter.

2 · Run the research
Press Brief to collect public updates from the 30 days ending at the time of the scan.

3 · Prepare and act
Review source links, focus on selected blocks, print a one-page summary, or use read-aloud.

FIVE FOCUSED BLOCKS, ONE BALANCED VIEW

News
Relevant developments that may change the meeting context.

Hires
Leadership appointments and notable team changes.

Launches
New products, services, facilities or initiatives.

Financial facts
Reported share-price, profit or loss information when reliable sources provide it.

Risks & open questions
Material risks, mitigations and useful questions to carry into the conversation.

USEFUL MOMENTS IN A LEADERSHIP DAY

Morning check-in
Scan a company or person you need to keep up with before the day's first conversation.

Before a key meeting
Review recent developments, then bring cited facts and open questions into the room.

After a major update
Run a fresh scan to see whether new public reporting changes the picture.

Why it helps every day

- Reduces the need to search across many sites before each meeting.
- Surfaces both positive developments and reported losses or risks.
- Keeps original links beside the facts for quick checking.
- Helps the leader arrive with informed questions, not assumptions.

Built for responsible use

The user starts each scan; it does not monitor continuously. The current workflow uses public information. Private mailbox/WhatsApp connections and AI-provider features remain off until secure user-owned setup is available.

Practical result: a focused, printable brief for the next meeting—with recent context, traceable sources and questions worth asking.
